General

What is a virtual event?

A virtual event allows you to attend from the comfort and convenience of your home or office through your personal computer or mobile device. The event takes place completely on-line. A virtual environment allows attendees to view keynote sessions, exhibitors and technical sessions.

Do I have to attend the entire event?

Virtual events bring the experience of an in-person conference to your personal computer, so just like an in-person conference, you have the freedom to pick the sessions you attend. But many say that attending the event in its entirety—the keynote, panel discussions, technical tracks and closing sessions—will help you to get the most out of the experience.

Can I pick breakout sessions to attend?

Yes. You can choose any session you would like to attend in each breakout session time block.

Will I be able to see the presenters for each session?

Yes. You will be able to see Keynote Speakers, Panelists, and Technical Track Presenters along with their presentations.

How do I ask questions during the track sessions?

We encourage you to ask questions at any time during the session. Option 1. Use the Q&A area, located on the upper right-hand side of the screen. Option 2. Type your questions in the chat box located on the lower right-hand side of the screen. These questions are then displayed to the session presenters for response during the session or afterwards, as a follow-up.

How do I ask questions during the live Keynotes or Panel Discussions?

See above. The only difference will be that a moderator will collect the questions and pose them to the speaker who will then answer live.

Can I access and view recordings of any presentations from the conference?

Your virtual conference registration includes access to all recordings after the event concludes. You can view any sessions you missed as soon as the recordings for those sessions are made available. All recorded sessions will be available for you to access at no additional charge until 31 October.

What if I am not available during the virtual conference dates?

The content will be available on-demand until 31 October for all registered participants. If you are unable to attend the week of the symposium we suggest you still register in advance and view all the content at your own pace.

How can I see what sessions are streaming live or recorded?

Keynote speakers and panels will be streamed live on "Stage". Technical track sessions will be pre-recorded and can be found on the "sessions" tab. From the virtual symposium main page click "Agenda" to view the schedule. Plan ahead, review the schedule and decide on the sessions you want to attend.

Technology

What technology do I need to attend the symposium?

For the best experience, we suggest a good Internet connection and using a desktop or laptop computer. Chrome Internet browser is strongly recommended to be able access all the features (Internet explorer is NOT supported.) You can also access the event on your mobile device such as an iPad. If you don't already have Chrome, you can download it for free here.

Can I access this event with a government computer?

Different agencies have different security measures. Most can access via their government computer on a non-government network. Depending on your firewall you may not be able to access thru a government network. Thus, we recommend viewing the event on a non-government network.

Do I need to have a webcam for the event?

Although you do not need a webcam to attend virtual events, you are encouraged to use your webcam during the networking sessions to allow for a face-to-face experience with other attendees.

Troubleshooting

What if a session has already started but the streaming isn't working?

If for any reason, you are experiencing technical difficulties with the streaming of a presentation, please know that it is still being recorded. If the interruption continues longer than a couple of minutes, we recommend switching to watch a different session and watch the recorded version later at your convenience.
